FROM ELITE PLAYER TO TOP MANAGER

PROJECT PARTNERS

TIME OUT

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING MORE?

A fast track to a range of qualifications in Leadership and Management in sport and business

Combined on-site learning via workshops with online study by distance learning

Credit for prior learning and experience

Relevant assessments related to your role as a professional sportsperson and future career aspirations

A SECOND CAREER

GET READY TO ENTER A NEW CHALLENGE

MAKE THE TRANSITION FROM ELITE PLAYER TO TOP MANAGER

Take a TIME OUT!

Take a short breath and determine your next steps!

With the TIME-OUT project we will help you achieve your professional goals. Through improvement of your management skills and knowledge, in addition to valuable expertise in basketball-specific issues, and support from our elite experts, we will get you ready for your next career.

As an experienced professional sportsperson you already have a wealth of leadership skills and competency, combined with a strong work ethic and competitive spirit. You also have a vast experience of living and working with people from a wide range of backgrounds.

If you are looking for a degree that fits in with your existing sports career, one that gives you credit for your prior sports training and one which will help prepare you for a career in a range of disciplines, this is a programme designed for you.

This is an extremely exciting project to be involved in. Planning a career, post-professional sport, is a major issue across all sports, and it is important that with this project we, along with the European Union, are acknowledging the issue and taking one of the necessary steps to address it.

Kamil Novak
FIBA Executive Director Europe

TIME-OUT is a project in the field of dual careers that focuses on the integration of basketball players into the labour market, showing the importance of thinking in advance about the life that follows after sport.

FIBA Europe, together with its academic partners, is creating an innovative programme designed specifically for basketball players. The innovative part that this project brings to the participants is the combination of three different qualifications:

- "Leadership and Management" CPD (Continuous Professional Development) certificate delivered by the Newcastle Business School of Northumbria University, UK.
- "Management" qualification (delivered by FIBA)
- "Talented Athlete Lifestyle Advisor" certificate (delivered by TASS)

The second leg of the project will be to place the newly qualified managers in their federations, or in other sports organisations, and also to set-up player development programmes linked to FIBA Foundation and the TASS support network.

Paola Ferrari, Paraguay

"My experience with TIME OUT program was extremely positive, and I would highly recommend the program.

I have improved my leadership, research, writing, analytical, and time management skills. The required courses provided me with a strong business management foundation, and the elective courses enabled me to expand my knowledge in areas of interest such as business industry's.

It was important to me to find a program that was flexible and could easily be combined with my professional basketball career and also the opportunity to meet people that show me the path after a long basketball career that is almost getting to the end, TIME-OUT prepared me for the next chapter. I am glad to have spent time learning alongside some very talented professionals from a diverse set of industries and backgrounds "

Sonja Vasic, Serbia

"I first joined the TIME-OUT program because I knew I was going to stop playing soon and I was really torn between two choices, continuing in the basketball world in the future or getting out completely once I finished my playing career. But this program opened so many new views to me and gave me so much knowledge.

I realized that as a player you are only aware of just a little bit of the basketball world, of just small parts. The program was really helpful not only to gain knowledge and see what my options, my possibilities are to continue my life in basketball, but also to see some roles or jobs that I would not like to do."

Axel Hervelle, Belgium

"It was a truly eye-opening experience for me, not only because I feel that I expanded my knowledge of basketball organizations but also because of meeting so many executives and former players and hearing their different stories about how they found their own path. I think it is, honestly, an experience that everybody should try and I would recommend it to all players. Hopefully the program will continue and many more players will go through it."

Yegor Mescheriakov, Belarus

"It's not a secret that the majority of players are faced with the question "What's next?" by the end of their careers. What Time-Out project does is allows one to think "outside of the court" while putting the emphasis on already existing and developed players' tangible skills such as strong character, work ethic and perseverance, to name a few. Moreover, the program enables you to "re-discover oneself" though leadership workshops, which leads to identifying the future career path. Finally, simply sharing the multitude of unique player experiences not only enriches all of the participants but empowers future global leaders to guide the sport of basketball for years to come."

By providing the three-tier education and academic qualification from an elite business university programme in conjunction with FIBA/FIBA Europe, the players-graduates will be able to access a wider range of employment opportunities on the market, not just in basketball but also in other sports, events and marketing organisations such as:

The TIME-OUT programme is tailored to match each participant's interests and profile. It comprises of week-long sessions (usually during the summer), each of which deals with a different aspect of sports administration and management. Delivered in English, the sessions are held over a period of 18 months in various European cities.

Working in partnership with sports professionals, Newcastle Business School (Northumbria University) has developed the Leadership and Management Programme, an innovative work-related certified programme designed to build upon your skills as a professional sportsperson.

Additionally, one special session is planned to take place at the FIBA headquarters in Mies, Switzerland.

PROGRAMME TIMELINE

1. Leadership and Management Certificate/ CPD

This particular training takes players' existing experience and helps to translate it into credentials that are recognised universally, as well as providing a unique platform from which to move on to the next stage of their own personal career development.

STAGE 1 (12 months) Course.

This professional development course will focus mainly on the fundamental principles of becoming a good sports manager by developing key administrative and management skills such as:

- Developing learning skills
- Principles of sports management in basketball
- Business environment and functions
- Developing management competences
- Communication and social skills (How to become a good "ambassador")
- Organisational structures in basketball worldwide

This part of the programme content will help participant players and sport in general to develop and improve their existing managerial skills and overall knowledge of business, whilst smoothing the transition between sport and other careers.

Learners who successfully complete this stage will be awarded with a Certificate/ CPD in Leadership and Management.

STAGE 2

Learners who successfully complete the 1st stage will be allowed to progress to Stage Two and work towards a BA (Hons) Leadership and Management.

All study materials are available online and as part-time/distance learning students, the individual books will be posted free of charge to wherever the student is located in the world.

The programme will be assessed by means of individually negotiated work-based reports. As distance learning students, participants will be supported fully on line and invited to attend support sessions at Newcastle Business School and selected European locations throughout the year as well as be provided with online tutorials and an ability to communicate via email, telephone and Zoom.

Participants will be sent a link to an online reading pack before they begin their first module. Core materials will be available on-line and participants will receive weekly guidance via email with links to video casts/ podcasts and associated reading.

2. FIBA Manager Qualification

The unique Business of Sport distinction of this programme in comparison to any other sport management degree on the market is the prioritisation of basketball specificities throughout the whole academic process.

The programme will be structured into a ten-module learning framework which will take student players through the fundamental principles of running a basketball organisation. This will be supported by basketball-specific lectures, seminars and workshops delivered on location at sports events, in the academic environment or at the offices of FIBA.

3. Talented Athlete Lifestyle Advisor certificate (TALS certificate)

In parallel to the above mentioned two courses, all players will have access to the TALS certificate.

FIBA Europe through the secured partnership with TASS will provide training for players' mentors (TALS Qualification, certificate in Talented Athlete Lifestyle Support) with an introduction to the principles of supporting and mentoring talented athletes. It is designed to cover both, theoretical and practical aspects of the mentoring process. The certified TALS graduate will become a player mentor, working in close cooperation with FIBA/FIBA Europe and the International Basketball Foundation.

This course aims to equip basketball players with the tools they need to pursue careers in other sporting endeavours. This course will give players skills and knowledge to become competent basketball ambassadors in their countries. It will also allow them to work at the highest level of basketball/ sports administration and management and to become qualified decision-makers and leaders. This qualification will entitle them to work with athletes from many other sports.

All assessment is designed to encourage improved practice in the workplace whilst also preparing for your future career and studies at postgraduate and professional level. The programme uses a combination of teaching and learning materials and techniques including:

- Self-study materials, providing knowledge and understanding, and helping you to apply ideas to the workplace
- Work-based assignments that give you an opportunity to develop and demonstrate your knowledge and understanding and provide evidence of competence
- Online workshops and tutorials where you are invited to share insights and experience
- Self-study workbooks are available online. These materials enable you to study at a pace that suits your own individual circumstances.

E-learning

Participants have access to NU and FIBA e-learning platforms to deepen their knowledge and access detailed information and supporting resources.

Individual Work

Each participant will be given a specific assignment that will be the base for their final report. This assignment will focus on a specific topic, project and/or strategy that will be defended orally at the end of the programme, before the FIBA Europe Examination Board.

Work Placement

Participants are required to gain practical experience in a basketball or other sports organisation under the supervision of their local tutor/supervisor nominated by the national federation. The FIBA Europe TIME-OUT project team can provide assistance in finding such placements, which can be highly flexible.

FINAL EXAMINATION AND GRADUATION CEREMONY

Each participant will be invited to present their final report orally, in front of the FIBA Europe Examination Board. This is your opportunity to present your project or report and explain the strategies and steps involved. Following this oral exam, a graduation ceremony will be organised. This ceremony will mark the end of your TIME-OUT and the start of a new chapter in your career.

Newcastle Business School (Northumbria University, Newcastle, UK)

With over 280 academic staff and 8,000 students the Faculty of Business and Law is one of the largest and well known faculties of its kind in the UK. As part of the faculty, Newcastle Business School (NBS) has a global reputation for delivering some of the best business management education in the UK. Having recently been awarded Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB international) double accreditation in business and accounting, NBS is part of an elite group of less than 1% of business schools worldwide. The School is also accredited by EPAS for 18 undergraduate programmes – more than any business school in the UK.

FIBA (Europe)

FIBA Europe is the administrative body for basketball in Europe, within the International Basketball Federation (FIBA), which includes all 50 national European basketball federations.

One of the key pillars of FIBA Europe's strategy is to promote and develop basketball in Europe in cooperation with its National Federations.

FIBA Europe is also in charge of the delivery of a range of programmes and projects across Europe and they include support for governance and administration structures, dual career for active and recently retired players, technical courses for sports administrators, officials and coaches.

Who can apply?

To be eligible for this exclusive leader's programme, applicants must meet the following criteria and be nominated by their national federation:

- Active or recently retired basketball players over 30 years of age
- Top (elite) national league players in their country, or national team players
- Education standard is a minimum of a high school diploma
- Excellent written and oral command of English language
- Highly motivated to attend 100% of all workshops and seminars in person and complete all e-learning tasks and assignments
- Players available during the summer to attend workshops and seminars (not active with national/club team in designated period).

National Federation contribution to the project

Each FIBA European member federation can nominate participants for the TIME-OUT project providing that they meet the above stated criteria.

The following support from each federation is required:

- To nominate a maximum of two Players – one female and one male
- To nominate one tutor/supervisor (to supervise the practical assessments of the students in local environment and be the contact person for FIBA Europe)
- To cover the international travel expenses for two players to attend four to five workshops/seminars.
- To pay participation fee per player accepted in the programme
- To set up a specially designated sub-page or specific area on their web-site dedicated to "Players" and add all material provided during and after the project (education, dual career information, player's handbook, toolkits, PDM contacts, etc.)
